BATHS OF EMPEROR OPEN TO PARISIANS

"Bains Deligny" Still in Use on Seine.

Paris—Parisians, when they take a notion to bathe, can splash around in the same baths patronized by the courtiers of Charles X, and later by the Emperor Napoleon III himself.

These baths, known as the Bains Deligny, are towed up the Seine each spring and anchored in front of the chamber of deputies. In winter they are taken down the river and out of Paris in order to avoid the heavy stationing tax.

The Deligny baths, Turkish in design, were built between 1801 and 1806 and are among the few open-air baths that have remained in Paris since the coming of modern plumbing. At one time it was the great fashion to bathe in the Seine, there being no fewer than thirty baths anchored in the river. The popularity of the bicycle ended the fashion. The Parisians, finding insufficient time for both sports, gave up the bathing.

The reign of Charles X was the most flourishing time for the "Bains Deligny." Only the aristocracy used them in those days. There was a surgeon and a hairdresser always in attendance, the words "Benoist Coiffeur" still being distinguishable under the coats of paint put on the walls from time to time. A restaurant that belonged to the original baths is now a cafe, but the paintings of the old days are still to be seen on the walls.

A catafalque intended, legend says, to convey the remains of the first Napoleon from Havre to Paris, when his body was brought home from St. Helena, was built at the baths. But the river froze that winter and Napoleon's body had to be brought overland from Havre.

There is one cabin in the Deligny baths called the cabin of the emperor. That is where Napoleon III used to loll away the summer afternoons. Nowadays one often sees deputies leave the chamber and enter the emperor's cabin to put on a bathing costume.

Survey Bares Loss in Church Building

Washington.—The bureau of labor statistics of the United States Department of Labor has just completed the compilation of data relating to building permits issued during the first six months of 1926 in 78 cities, each of which had a population of 100,000 or over, according to the census bureau estimate of July 1, 1925.

In these 78 cities which have an estimated population of 31,577,223, permits were issued for new housekeeping dwellings to accommodate 207,231 families in the first half of 1926. This is at the ratio of 65.6 families per 10,000 of population. The average per capita expenditure for new housekeeping dwellings in this six months' period was $28.43.

More money was spent in the 65 cities for apartment houses, hotels, factories, public buildings, public works, utilities and schools in the first six months of 1926 than in the corresponding period of 1925, while less was spent for one-family dwellings, two-family dwellings, office buildings and stores. While the amount of money spent for amusement buildings in the 65 cities increased from $46,209,987 in the first half of 1925 to $47,488,929 in the first half of 1926, or 4.3 per cent, the amount spent for churches decreased from $22,212,351 in the former period to $14,451,190 in the latter, a decrease of 35 per cent.

Expense Account of 135 B. C. Is a Foot Long

London, England—Prof. Francis W. Kelsey of the University of Michigan is returning to the United States with a remarkable collection of ancient documents, ranging in date from the middle of the Third century B. C. to the end of the Sixth century A. D., which has been presented to the university by Oscar Webber and Richard H. Webber of Detroit. The collection was brought together in Egypt and comprises more than 350 documents. The language is chiefly Greek, but there is a select group of Coptic documents. Among the dated documents is a complete expense account of the year 145 or 135 B. C., one foot in length and three and three-quarters inches wide.

King's Whim Prevents Death of Royal Party

Bucharest.—A sudden whim of King Ferdinand saved a boatload of royalty from possible serious injury or death.

With former King George of Greece, Prince Christopher of Greece and several of his nephews and a Hohenzollern princess, King Ferdinand was motor-boating at Braila, on the Danube. The king's entourage followed the royal boat in another craft.

King Ferdinand decided that he and the members of the royal party would take the boat occupied by his entourage. Hardly had the change been made when the engine on the royal launch exploded, injuring several persons.

RUBBER TREE FOUND IN FLORIDA GARDEN

Raises Hopes in Minds of Plant Experts.

Washington—Considerable excitement has been aroused among the rubber experts of the United States Department of Agriculture here over the discovery by O. F. Cook, department rubber expert, of a twenty-five year-old Brazilian rubber tree growing in a yard at Palm Beach, Fla. While their decline to state that this indicates the possibility of large-scale rubber plantation operations in the United States proper, the mere existence of this tree so far out of the equatorial zone, hitherto thought to be its only possible home, gives rise to suggestions which they think should be acted upon at once.

In its native home in the Amazon valley, as well as in the plantations of Indomalaya, the Brazilian rubber tree sticks very close to the equator, where the normal cool nights and the occational frosts of the Florida climate are unknown.

Experiments That Came to Grief.

Experimental plantations of rubber seedlings in Florida twenty years ago all came to grief, and last winter an unusual cold snap severely injured most of the seedlings at the Department of Agriculture's experimental farm at Coconut Grove and killed a part of them outright. It has, therefore, been assumed that the Brazilian species is extrasensitive to cold and would not survive in even a subtropical climate. To all this, the discovery of a twenty-foot-high tree, with a trunk between three and four inches thick, has proved very upsetting.

An outcome of this indication of hardiness, on the part of at least some of the Brazilian trees, of more practical and immediate importance than attempts to grow rubber in Florida, will be the investigation of the possible adaptability of the species for cultivation in the border-line tropics, such as Mexico and the West Indies.

Hevea Harder Than Castilla.

There is already some indication that Hevea, the Brazilian tree, is hardier than the Mexican rubber tree, Castilla, for last winter's frost at Coconut Grove had worse effects on Castilla seedlings than it had on seedlings of Hevea in neighboring rows.

In the meantime, the department is instituting a search in other parts of Florida for Hevea trees, similar to the Palm Beach specimen, which people may have set out as ornamentals. They point out that the Palm Beach location is not the best kind of habitat for the species, since Hevea is predominantly a tree requiring shelter, and that the inland hardwood groves, or "hammocks," would afford this better than a coastal location swept by sea breezes.

Aircraft Industry Gains Rapidly

Philadelphia—Manufacture of aircraft in the United States has assumed the proportions of an important industry in recent years, Seventeen years ago Orville Wright sold his first airplane to the United States government. Last year the American aircraft industry turned out products to a total value of $12,277,000.

The growth is significant, according to the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics, which points out that present activity in the construction of aircraft represents peace-time stimulus of war activity. In this respect progress figures of the last twelve years are illuminating. In 1914 the total value of all aircraft products of the United States was only $782,872. The war gave such an impetus to the aircraft industry that by 1919 the total value of aircraft products had mounted to $14,-373,000. With the inevitable deflation of the post-war period, aircraft production shrunk in two years to little more than $6,000,000.

The years that followed 1921 have seen a recovery, however, which has been quite as striking as the decline. Whereas production fell in two years to considerably less than half of what it had been at the close of the war, another two years saw the low figure of 1921 almost doubled.

Leave for South Africa on Star Study Trip

Ann Arbor, Mich.—Prof. William A. Hussey of the University of Michigan, accompanied by Mrs. Hussey and Prof. and Mrs. Richard A. Rossiter, will leave New York on a year's expedition to South Africa, there to map the double stars of the southern hemisphere.

The expedition is the culmination of plans laid nearly a decade ago. Robert P. Lamont of Chicago offered to finance a 27-inch telescope, but the making of the lens was delayed by the World war and then by the death of workmen selected to do the polishing. The instrument was not completed until last year. It was set up here and tested and then dismounted and sent to South Africa.

The observations will be made from a lonely hill in the Orange Free State, a site selected by Professor Hussey after a tour of South Africa.

INFANTS SAVED BY PHTHISIS VACCINE

A Treatment Developed in France Reduces Deaths.

Washington.—Infants have been successfully vaccinated against tuberculosis, Dr. B. Wellie-Halle, associate director of the school for child welfare of the College of Medicine, Paris, said before the National Tuberculosis association convention.

"B. C. G." is the name given the substance used in vaccinating infants," said Doctor Wellie-Halle. "It has resulted in the reduction of mortality to less than one per hundred the first years of life, whereas the mortality among children of the same age not so vaccinated and reared in contaminated families is at least twenty-five per hundred."

The reports were based on the experience among infants in France, Great Britain, Belgium and Sweden.

"This treatment is not a cure for tuberculosis," Doctor Welli-Halle stated. "The vaccination is performed only upon infants and immediately after birth. Up to the present, only a very small number of deaths from tuberculosis is reported, or of diseases presumed to be tuberculosis. Our data as yet are insufficient to determine the probable duration of immunity. We know only that very precise experiments with calves and monkeys, as well as observations on children vaccinated since 1921, show that resistance to infectious due to cohabitation with contagious tuberculosis has continued for three years and perhaps longer."

The preparation of the vaccine used is highly technical and must be safeguarded by many precautions in the laboratories.

Professor Calmette's original vaccine was propagated through 230 generations, thus attenuating its virulence. The result was a living tuberculosis germ so weakened that it no longer possessed the faculty of forming tubercules, but retaining its ability to create what are technically known as anti-bodies—substances having an antagonistic effect upon the germs of the disease.

Heroine of Gold Rush Is Aged and Destitute

Colton, Calif.—"Mother" Woods, who carried the news across Alaska that a great gold strike had been made on the spot which soon became Nome, wants to take in washings so that she may eat.

Mrs. C. W. Chace, as "Mother" Woods is now known, left the North with $50,000 in her money belt. Adversity began with the loss of her fortune and was followed by the disappearance of her husband after an automobile accident.

Friend of Rex Beach, Jack London and Tex Rickard in the North during the gold rush days, Mrs. Chace declares she can do as good a washing as anyone, in spite of her seventy years. She says she was the first white woman to set foot in Nome, and that she was "Anna Black" of Rex Beach's "The Spoilers."

Mrs. Chace heard and heeded the call of the North in 1894 and lived in Alaska for 22 years, with only infrequent visits "outside." Mrs. Woods, before her marriage in Denver to C. W. Chace, she became known as "Cripple Creek Mother" Woods, friend of the outcasts. It was while carrying letters and newspapers from "back home" to the camp-hogs in the interior that she spread the news from St. Michael that gold had been struck on the Bering creeks and

Eating of Horse Meat Increases in Prussia

Berlin.—Nowhere is meat being eaten in greater quantity than at any time since the armistice, not excluding the war period when horses were slaughtered because there was little other meat available. The ministry of agriculture reports that the increased consumption is not due to a great relish for horse steaks, but a distressing economic condition. The consumption of horse flesh increased 23 per cent this year over the corresponding period in 1925.

Peter-Piper Puzzles Replace Cross-Words

London.—Now that the cross-word puzzle, which swept across England from America, leaving a trail of thumbed dictionaries in its wake, has spent its force, England has turned to Peter-Piperisms for solace.

Peter-Piperisms are alliterative sentences containing at least eight and not more than twelve words, each of which begins with the same letter.

"Since short skirts still seem stylish, silk stockings shouldn't sag" is the contribution of one chifferette expert.

Another hopes, "May many more manly milners marry me-dlocrical maids make much money."

Other tongue-twisters are: "Mr. Manager, money might make Hamlet marry my miserable Max.—Max's Mother."

"Stephen, shyly stroking Sylvia's shining shingle, seemingly surmises smiling Sylvia's single" and "Lily likes licking limp lowriefer."

ROCKS NEWS

After the big frost last week the foliage has turned red, yellow and brown, which makes a beautiful sight to behold. Those who live in the big cities, and who have never seen these paintings by God's hand, need to be pitied. What a wonderful thing they have missed.

Mrs. T. H. Ford entertained quite a number of her friends last Saturday night with Hallowe'en. The parlor was beautifully decorated with autumn leaves, black cats, and bats dotted the walls, together with witches and a ghost, in the corner.—Many of the ladies dressed in mask. Games, such as "Following the cord from room to room in search of mates", Fortune Telling", "Bobbing for apples hung from the wall" "Partners kneeling and bobbing for apples swung from their right hands" etc. were indulged in and splendid string music was rendered by DeWitt Marshall and Jim B. Ford. Everybody had a delightful time leaving at 11 o'clock, wishing Mrs. Ford would entertain again soon.

B. C. Sims and family, spent last Sunday in the home of R. W. Martin.

Mr. and Mrs. DeWit Harvey, W. B. Harvey, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Ferguson and baby were visitors in the home of W. T. Nash Sunday.

Mr and Mrs. J. A. Martin visited in the home of A. S. Woolridge last Sunday.

Miss Mary Marshall was a guest of her sister, Mrs Overton at Brookneal recently.

We are sorry little George Davis is suffering with a boil on his neck and glad little Thos. Oder has recovered.

STONEWALL

The W. M. U. of Hebron Baptist chrch delightfully celebrated the 10th anniversary of the "Margaret Fund" at the home of the president, Mrs. A. T. Caudil, Wednesday, October 27.

The ladies began to arrive about 10:30 a m, each carrying a basket of eats. By dinner hour about thirty were present and the table filled with delicious food such as ham, chicken salad, and tomato sandwiches, fried and roast chicken, potato salad, bread, peach, pear and cucumber pickels, pies and cakes and hot coffee.

After dinner the program was enjoyed by all. Acrostics were read from different countries by the ladies after assembling in the dining room, where the birthday cake, decorated with burning candles was cut and served and enjoyed by all.

Our Group Leader, Mrs. T. L. Christian, of Appomattox, was present and gave an inspiring message.

After the program was concluded the members assembled in the yard, where pictures were made of the society.

All expressed themselves as having enjoyed the day so much and wishing we may have a meeting of the two groups quite often. Members of both groups present included:

Mesdames W. S. Taylor, T. A. Drinkard, T. Drinkard, W. H. Drinkard, J. P. Alvis, S. L. Scruggs, Nathan Tanner, F. E. Jennings, Jack Caldwell, Lyle Caldwell, Walter Cannon, Sam Davidson, C. C. Carson, Mary C, Cawthorn, T. L. Christian, Parks Jennings, W. D. Sandidge, Anna Lee, Rufus Burnett, J. R. Burnette and Mrs. Johnson; Misses Evie Drinkard, Helen Scruggs, Lina Carson, children, Lloyd, Thomas, Henry and Geo Jennings, Aubrey and Nadine Burnett, Clayton Drinkard, Jr. Barbara and Elvin Caldwell and Catherine Caudil. Quite a number of members were kept away on account of sickness.

Mrs. Jennie Bondurant and children, Calton, Malcolm and Eleanor of Six Mile Bridge and their guests Mrs. Sallie Younger and daughter of Rustburg, spent Sunday with T. A. Drinkard and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Jacobs left Saturday for Richmond on account of illness of Mr. Jacobs.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Drinkard had as their dinner guests Sunday, Mr and Mrs. John Patteson, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Drinkard, Miss Kathleen Hamilton, of Lexington.

Clayton Drinkard entertained a number of his friends at a corn shucking, Saturday.

Hallowe'en Party

The Hallowe'en party which was held at the school house at Evergreen last Saturday night was quite a success, both socially and financially. Even "Alice in Wonderland" never looked upon such a ludicrous and grotesque assembly of characters as participated.

"Weary Willie" with his bundle on his back strode serenely along by the stately priest.

Merry Widows, ghosts and goblins, old black mammy and Buffalo Bill, Little Bo-Peep and Red Riding Hood, and last, but not least, the Hon. S. L. Ferguson, represented by one of our most charming ladies, amply attesting the esteem in which he is held here.

After the grand march prizes were awarded for the best costumes to O. C. Paulette and Mrs. Sam Staples, who were crowned king and queen by Mr. S. L. Ferguson.

After serving refreshments the guests departed to their homes after having passed a most enjoyable evening.

Red Cross Volunteer Workers Ever on Duty

Claim for the oldest volunteer nurse in the country is advanced by the Lincoln County Chapter of the American Red Cross at Wiscasset, Maine. She is Mrs. L. A. W. Jackson, who keeps busy knitting stockings for the Red Cross to send to destitute children abroad. The San Pedro, Calif., Chapter has a close second in a volunteer knitter 85 years old.

The annual report of the American Red Cross stresses the service of volunteers in more than 3,000 Red Cross Chapters the officers and workers are volunteers.

They will act as solicitors in the Tenth Annual Roll Call for members, which the Red Cross will conduct from November 11 to 25.

Nearly 80,000 disabled veterans are assisted by the American Red Cross on an average every month. Care of the disabled veteran is a foremost responsibility of the Red Cross, in which the people can share by joining its ranks during the Tenth Annual Roll Call, November 11 to 25.

Pardonable Pride

Some interesting data furnished us by Principal L. Crawley, from the state High School report just published.

Cost per pupil for the Appomattox High School $35.32 per session. Average cost per pupil in High Schools of the state $62.01. Appomattox High School is teaching high School pupils at a saving of 45 per cent below the average cost in state. The question now arises is it doing efficient work? According to Supt. Hart the school is 82 per cent efficient—higher than the average efficiency of high schools in the state.

The enrollment here is larger than at Farmville, Crewe, Chase City, Scottsville, Alta Vista, Blackstone, Warrenton, Galax, Lexington, Marion, Orange, Culpeper, Big Stone Gap, Wytheville and Williamsburg, all of which are town or city schools
